Designed to aid in home rehabilitation and promote an active lifestyle, this versatile trainer offers adjustable low resistance, making it ideal for individuals with weakened muscles or leg injuries. The lowest setting provides minimal resistance, while the highest remains light enough for effective rehabilitation. Commonly referred to as a leg trainer, it is widely used for strengthening the hips, knees, ankles, and leg muscles. Additionally, it can be adapted for arm training and upper-body rehabilitation, offering a well-rounded recovery solution.
